BULLETIN REGARDING SCHOOL ATTENDANCE ISSUED BY PRINCIPAL

The following bulletin has been issued by Principal James Ferguson, of the Jefferson Union high school, regarding compulsory school attendance, and the employment of minors. In order that there shall be no wilful violation of law it is urged that all parents and employers of children of high school age call at the office of Principal Ferguson immediately and have the law fully explained. It is the duty of the local school authorities to enforce the provisions of the law both with parents and employers of school children.

The bulletin reads as follows:

"To all parents and guardians in the Jefferson Union high school district:

"Your attention is respectfully called to the following extracts from the General Laws governing the schools of California and applicable to every child in Jefferson Union high school district:

"Section 1. Compulsory School Attendance—Exemptions. Each parent, guardian or other person having control or charge of any child between the ages of eight and sixteen years, not exempted under the provisions of this act, shall be required to send such child to a public full-time day school for the full time for which the public schools of the city, city and county or school district in which the child resides shall be in session. . . . Provided, that the following classes of children shall be exempted by the proper school authorities from the requirements of attendance upon a public full-time day school:

"(1) Physical or Mental Disability. Children whose physical or mental condition is such as to prevent or render inadvisable attendance at school or application to study; provided, that the governing board of the school district may require satisfactory evidence of such condition to be furnished; and provided, further, that said governing board may, itself, exclude from attendance on regular school classes any child whose physical or mental disability is such as to cause such attendance to be inimical to the welfare of other pupils.

"Section 2. Penalty for failure to Comply With Act. Any parent, guardian or other person having control or charge of any such child, who shall fail to comply with the provisions of this act, shall, unless excused or exempted therefrom as hereinbefore provided, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be liable, for the first offense, to a fine of not more than ten dollars or to imprisonment for not more than five days, and for each subsequent offense shall be liable to a fine of not less than ten days nor more than fifty dollars, or to imprisonment for not less than five days nor more than twenty-five days, or to both such fine and imprisonment.

"Also Act 7496 provides that all persons between the ages of 16 and 18 years who have not graduated from high school must attend part-time classes for not less than four hours per week throughout the regularly established annual school term.

"ACT 7487.

"Section 3d. (2) Penalty if Employer Violates Act. Any person, firm, corporation, agent or officer of a firm, or corporation, that violates or omits to comply with any of the provisions of this act, or that employs or suffers or permits any minor to be employed in violation thereof, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars or more than two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for not more than sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment, for each and every offense."

Parents and guardians and those who employ children of high school age are respectfully urged to call at the high school regarding the provisions of the above laws.

NO BLAME FIXED BY KOFF JURY

"Death by suffocation in a fire, the origin of which was unknown."

This was the verdict of a coroner's jury at Redwood Citiy last Tuesday in the deaths of Mrs. Lena Koff, wife of a San Francisco realty dealer, their 9-year-old son Howard, and Rose Hyman, Mrs. Koff's sister. The inquest was held under direction of Dr. J. C. McGovern, coroner. The fire in which the three lost their lives occurred nearly two weeks ago, when the home in which the Koff family were living for the summer burned to the ground.

DALY CITY EAGLES HAVE LADIES' NIGHT

Last Saturday evening the members of Colma-Vista Grande Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eeagles, were hosts to their wives, sweethearts and friends at their hall in Daly City, the occasion being designated as ladies' night.

Dancing began at 8:30, when a splendid crowd had assembled, and at intervals between dances an elaborate enterainment was given, consisting of a "family band," instrumental and vocal solos and fancy dancing by Miss Frances Poket. Refreshments were served at 10:30, and from the expressions of those present, the entire affair was a splendid and enjoyable success.

The affair was in charge of the Eagles' booster committee, with Fred Collins as chairman.

DALY CITY PLAYERS AGAIN VICTORIOUS

A good sized crowd of Daly City and Colma baseball fans were treated to some heavy stick work on the part of the Daly City boys last Sunday in their baseball game at the Jefferson Union high school grounds with the Butler Vietch team. Duke Cruchoff led the attack on the opposing pitchers with two doubles over the fence. The game was won in the second inning, when four solid clouts combined with an error produced four runs. Pitcher Strand had easy going from then on. He struck out nine batters and allowed but four hits and one run, going into the last inning, when he eased up a bit and the Butler Vietch boys scored two more.

The final score was: Daly City, 16 runs, 20 hits, 3 errors; Butler Vietch, 3 runs, 7 hits, 4 errors.

Batteries—For Daly City, B. Strand and F. Strand; Butler Vietch, Hollis, Campbell and Parente.

The Daly City Merchants will play at the Jefferson Union high school grounds next Sunday at 2:30.

Those who enjoy baseball should attend these games and boost for the local team.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE AT THE METHODIST CHURCH

Dr. Carl M. Warner will deliver the sermon Sunday evening at the Daly City Methodist church, after which a quarterly conference meeting will be held to discuss plans for the new church year.

We find that folks are gradually making their way back to church. We invite you to enjoy all of our services with us. Sunday school at 10 o'clock with classes for all ages, Junior League at 6 in the evening, Epworth League for the young people of the community at 7 p. m., and the evening church service at 8 p. m. Surely you can come to some one of these services during the Sabbath.

Remember! Nothing can make our souls so pure and strong, nothing can arm us so completely for the great conflicts of life, as to be alone for one hour with infinite truth and infinite love. There is no joy, duty, conflict or sorrow for which we cannot be better prepared by prayer.—March.

The men who have revolutionized society by their heroic deeds in the cause of God have been mighty thru the inspiration of prayer. Paul, Luther, Wesley, Whitefield and the noble army of martyrs became bold to dare and strong to do because they were men of prayer.

Prayer is our speech to God. When we read, God speaks to us; when we pray, we speak to God.—Augustine.

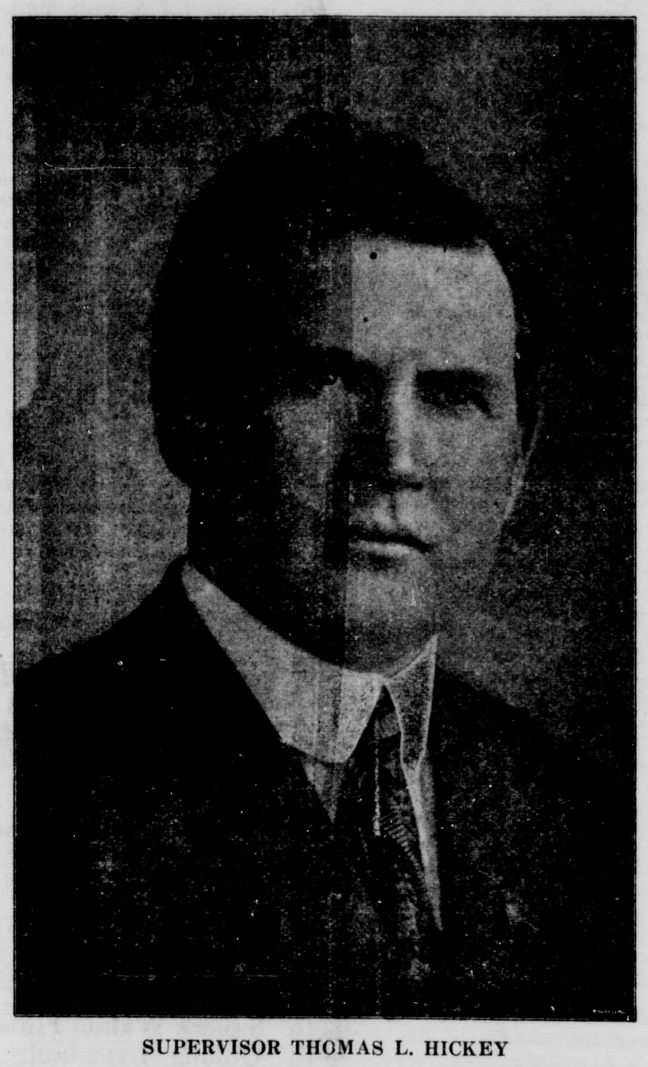
Prayer will make a man cease from sin, or sin will entice a man to cease from prayer.—Bunyan.

Pray, I beseech you, brethren, for a great revival to sweep this church, and particularly this community. If the forces of the Christian church are ever to unite, or ever to establish the long hoped for and prayed for objective—the Kingdom of God—it will only be accomplished through the medium of prayer. Begin today.

ELLIOTT L. FISHER, Minister.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Little Robert E. Armando, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Armando, of 446 Winchester street, celebrated his fourth birthday on Thursday afternoon of last week. The afternoon was spent in playing games and little Alice Cuneo entertained the guests with several songs. Thie dining room and table were prettily decorated in pink crepe paper with little favors to match. A pretty birthday cake, with four candles, occupied the center of the table. Robert received many lovely gifts from his little friends. The guests were Mrs. G. Breslin and daughters Helen and Marjorie, of Burlingame, Mrs. E. Cuneo and daughters Beatrice, Ernestine, Alice and Regina, Jeanette Barger, Mrs. E. Heywood and daughter Jean, of the Sunset district, and Mrs. O. Armando.



SUPERVISOR THOMAS L. HICKEY

SERVICE SHOULD BE REWARDED

As election day approaches it becomes more and more apparent that the incumbent County Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey will be re-elected.

In fact it has been a sort of unwritten rule in San Mateo county that an official who has been faithful to his trust is always re-elected as a reward for good service.

Thomas L. Hickey has now served his district for twelve years. And the one thing that is outstanding in his career as an official is the fact that the value of his service to the district and to the county at large increases with each succeeding term.

In fact, in the consideration of large county problems Supervisor Hickey has come to be looked upon as a leader.

We are not interested in mere matters of personality. We are interested in Mr. Hickey as an official.

In the establishment of Memorial Park of San Mateo county, we find Mr. Hickey was a leader. The preservation of this virgin forest of redwoods and its dedication in the name of our soldier dead to the benefit of our families and our posterity for all time was a master stroke. Mr. Hickey not only led in selecting and buying this beautiful park, but he named it "Memorial" in honor of our boys of service and of sacrifice. It was Mr. Hickey's foresight that provided quarters in that park for our Boy Scouts and our Legion men, Girl Scouts, Y. M. C. A., and Camp Fire Girls.

The Supervisor has always been most active in bringing the County Hospital and County Relief Home up to the present high standard of efficiency and service.

Our present highways are the best evidence of the efficiency and honesty of administration in that department. Modern vehicles of traffic have made the construction and maintenance of public highways a new and most difficult problem. With the limited funds, maintenance itself has become most expensive, but in addition to maintenance, Mr. Hickey has worked steadily onward in a program of permanent new construction.

Only recently, after a long and persistent fight, Mr. Hickey has succeeded in the formation of a joint highway district for the establishment and construction of a new boulevard from North Burlingame to Sloat Boulevard and San Francisco. This will give the people of San Mateo county a much needed highway, 85 per cent of the cost being borne by San Francisco and 15 per cent by San Mateo county.

The American Legion, in fact every humanitarian organization of the county, looks to Supervisor Hickey as their champion on the Board of Supervisors.

No good public official can be favorable to every demand that is made upon him. The statesman must sometimes say no. This sometimes gives rise to dissatisfied individuals, who are always ready to grasp at something new. But the large majority is always ready to show just gratitude for true public service.

Supervisor Hickey is a clean, srtaight-forward man of high principle. No one ever has any difficulty of knowing where he stands. He is a good public speaker. He always champions the cause in which he believes most courageously and effectively. He is looked upon as a leader in San Mateo county affairs. He has had twelve years valued experience as a Supervisor. His earnestness and efficiency have increased with each succeeding year, and it is apparent that the people of the district are again deciding that they are not going to throw away the benefit of this valuable experience.

A man in the open, on the fire line of public service for twelve years, is a known quantity. A man not yet tried and not yet subject to public scrutiny and public criticism is always an unknown quantity, especially in trying situations.

WE ARE FOR HICKEY. HE HAS MADE GOOD AND SHOULD BE RE-ELECTED.

GOV. SMITH FORMALLY ACCEPTS NOMINATION

Goveror Alfred E. Smith of New York formally accepted the Democratis presidential nomination Wednesday night at Albany, New York, in a speech laying down a definite program for prohibition modification and urging its adoption on moral grounds.

Governor Smith proposed changing the Volstead act by increasing the legal limit of alcoholic content of beverages and by permitting individual states to set lower limits or prohibit all liquors at their discretion.

He advocated amendment to the Eighteenth amendment to permit states, by popular vote, to adopt a system of state sale of liquor similar to the system used in Canada.

He pledged himself to strict enforcement of the Volstead act and the Eighteenth amendement as long as they remain on the statute books and reiterated previous statements that he would not countenance return of the open saloon.

The Democratic presidential candidate promised, if elected, to call an agricultural leaders' conference to work out a farm relief plan for presentation to Congress.

In discussing in detail other major issues than prohibition and farm relief, the nominee challenged the Republican claims of economy and prosperity; denounced the use of United States marines in Nicaragua; declared for "real outlawry of war," and for co-operation with European nations in the interest of world peace; favored government ownership and control of Muscle Shoals; development of the Boulder dam project in the southwest by the states involved by a "Colorado river authority" similar to the New York port authority plan, and government ownership of all water power and natural resources still in the hands of the government or states; condemned "dishonest and unpatriotic propaganda" of electrical power interests, and pledged himself to seek legislation to prevent "grave abuses" in the use of federal injunctions in labor disputes.

LOMITA PARK DEVELOPMENT CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Lomita Park Improvement Club held their meeting last Monday night, and took up matters of importance to their district. Thomas L. Hickey, supervisor, spoke and gave a good account of what has been accomplished in this district, and districts from Burlingame to Daly City. Mr. Hickey told of attending the San Francisco board of supervisors' meeting Monday, August 13, regarding the Alemany boulevard question, in which this county is vitally interested, and pointed out the advantages to both counties. Mr. Hickey also spoke of bringing about a Community hospital in this county, thereby making it possible to alleviate any feeling of charity among patients and their families; of Memorial Park, as a lasting tribute to the soldiers of the World war. The members of the club and their friends applauded the efforts and accomplishments done by Hickey in these communities.

SOUTH CITY'S NEW TRAFFIC REMEDY PROVING SUCCESS

South San Francisco's new method of dealing with traffic offenders is having a beneficial effect, according to Judge Edward Farrell of that city. Arrests for speeding and violation of arterial stop ordinances have fallen off considerably. First offenders of the traffic laws are compelled to drive back for a considerable distance, or around the block, for arterial stop offenders, and then come back to the point where the officer is awaiting them. They are then allowed to proceed on their way. Second offenders will be dealt with more drastically, with the possibility of a jail sentence and a heavy fine.

Firebug Suspect Under Arrest

Pat Coyne, aged 43, a woodsman of Pescadero, is in jail at Redwood City following his arrest by Constable Walter Moore at Pescadero on suspicion of having ignited a forest fire in the Pescadero district which broke out Monday afternoon. He is being held pending investigation. Coyne was under suspicion by Fire Warden Werder several days before his arrest.

BELMONT CITIZENS REQUEST WIDENING OF STATE HIGHWAY

A request for the survey of the state highway through Belmont to provide for widening of the highway at a later date was taken under advisement by the San Mateo county board of supervisors last Monday, the request being presented with the signatures of sixty property owners, headed by D. W. Callen, president of the Belmont Commonwealth Club. The communication also asked that the board appropriate funds for an estimate of the cost of the widening to conform with the present road through San Mateo and Burlingame.

County Engineer George A. Kneese was instructed to prepare a road map of the county for display in San Mateo county's booth at the state fair at Sacramento. The order followed a request from the San Mateo County Chamber of Commerce.

More than forty items on the budget of San Mateo county for the coming fiscal year were under discussion Monday afternoon by the supervisors. The conference was a round-table discussion on requests for increases in various departments of the county government.

Application of the Spring Valley Water Company to close a road at the north end of the lower Crystal Springs lake near San Andreas was granted. The closing will be temporary, to permit of raising a dam across the lower end of the lake and the placing of a spillway in the dam, which is to be raised six feet and widened, the application stated.

Two additional lights were granted to the town of Colma on the application of Louis Nava and others, and a map of Belle Haven subdivision was accepted and filed.

A petition from W. H. Witt and others for street lighting at Lomita Park was presented to the board and County Engineer Kneese was instructed to clear trees which obstruct the view at a curve on the San Gregorio road.

Licenses to sell soft drinks were granted to Arthur F. Haskins, Colma; John F. Murray, Colma; W. H. Grosskruth, Moss Beach; Charles Gust, Rockaway Beach, and Lou J. Wayte, operating the Tea Garden at Belmont.

RANCHER KILLED CROSSING HIGHWAY

Giacomo Pastorina, aged 42, a well known South San Francisco rancher, was instantly killed Sunday night as a result of being struck by an automobile while he was crossing the road near Baden. The driver of the automobile, Mrs. J. K. Miller, Jr., of San Francisco, told Constable S. A. Landini that she did not see Pastorina until she struck him. There are no lights where the accident occurred, and the traffic was very heavy at the time.

After the accident, Mrs. Miller sought help in taking the man to the hospital, but he was pronounced dead upon arrival at the hospital.

Mrs. Miller was placed under arrest by Constable Landini, and later released.

Deputy Coroner Silvio Nieri, who took charge of the body, said this is the fourth person killed on the same spot in the past few months.

SAN MATEO COUNTY PIONEER ANSWERS LAST SUMMONS

Emmet Hawkins Rixford, former leading member of the California bar and a pioneer resident of Woodside, where he engaged extensively in grape growing, died last Sunday at Mills Memorial hospital. Rixford. one of the founders of the California Pacific Title Insurance Company and long among the West's leading authorities on land titles, was also a student of viticulture and author of a text book on the subject which had served for years as a guide to the grape growers of California.

Born in Vermont, Rixford came to California in 1869 and in 1875 was married to Miss Catherine T. Halsey, daughter of the late Charles Halsey of the State Supreme Court.

The funeral services were held in Burlingame, with interment in the Cypress Lawn cemetery, Lawndale.

STATE FAIR TO HAVE GREAT LIVESTOCK SHOW

Showing complete recovery from the effects of the foot and mouth epidemic of several years ago, the State Fair livestock show, September 1st to 8th, will be a record-breaker, it is stated by Fred H. Bixby in charge of this department of the exposition.

The livestock feature of the Fair was seriously interrupted by the epidemic which caused the death of a number of prize animals and prevented a showing by out-of-state exhibitors.

This year's Fair will be marked by the participation of a record number of animals from outside of California as well as the best stock bred in the state. The premiums total $36,500.

BAY REGION FOSSILS SHOW EARLY HISTORY

A glimpse of the history of Central California and of the animals that inhabited it probably 10,000,000 years ago has been vouchsafed to scientists at the University of California through the discovery of several fossils in the course of excavation work by the East Bay Municipal Utility District.

Two fossils, the foreleg bone of a camel, and the milk tusk of a four-tusked primitive mastodon have been turned over to Professor W. D. Matthew, chairman of the department of paleontology.

Notes accompaning the mastodon tusk state that the discovery was made by J. P. McCafferty, a surveyor on the Claremont Tunnel project, and that the fossil was turned over to the university through H. G. White of the bond department of the United Security Bank and Trust Company, San Francisco. A small piece was found at a depth of about 300 feet and then some distance farther in a larger portion was discovered. It was thought at first that the fossil was a portion of a bear or sabretooth tiger tooth. But with the recovery of the larger part, probably of the same tusk, it was shown to have belonged to a mastodon.

Professor Matthew states that the tusk is interesting in that it is small, undoubtedly a young mastodon's first set, and also in that it is from a primitive species with a strip of enamel still clinging to one side. The modern elephant tusk does not have enamel, but in the primitive type, the intermediate step in the development of teeth into tusks is shown.

The other fossil of the primitive camel was found near Lafayette dam. More data concerning the finder and the conditions under which it was discovered will be obtained later it is hoped.

REAL OR FALSE

The desire of so many to attract attention, to appear prosperous, to sail under false colors, causes them to impose upon themselves the chains of slavery. Monthly payments on the installment plan, the living above one's means, are jealous masters that demand days of drudgery, hours of worry, causing new wrinkles, gray hairs, and shorten lives. The momentary satisfaction that may be derived from putting on a show is small compensation.

The old car suits fine until the neighbor gets a new model with a different shaped hood. The clothes would do well for another season, but what would people say? The furniture looks great until the wonderful bargain sale is heard of. Everything can be bought for just a little down and a little a month. Not so bad to hear about, but how fast those months come around! How quickly the bank account may be depleted by numerous small checks.

When one pauses to think and observe, it is obvious that it is not necessary to cover the real thing with gaudy labels in order for its true worth to be known. Those who are in fact prosperous and successful care little for the appearance of wealth that others sacrifice so much to maintain. If one investigates further, it is found also that these were not proscrastinators in the matter of the nest egg. Nor were they adverse to doing without the showy red paint.

Yet man's inherent enemies, envy, jealousy, false pride, the much talked of inferiority complex, urge one deeper and deeper into a sea of bills until it becomes a constant struggle to keep the head above water. The little nest egg that was going to be put away to get a start never materializes. The laying of the foundation for the savings account is put off until tomorrow and too often that tomorrow never arrives.

The ability to be independent, the joy of freedom from debt, the knowledge that you can look everyone in the eye, knowing you are square with the world and getting a start toward success, is traded for a mess of pottage. One spends on and dreams of castles in the future.

It is a certainty that if the dream castle is to become a reality, one has to start gathering the stones. It is true that they are a little heavy at first, but with each one placed the burden is less, and there is a lot of satisfaction in seeing the stones placed in the wall. Then, too, the waster, the spender, must also work in the quarry. The burdens are just as heavy, the hours of labor as long, the distinction being that such a one never knows the satisfaction of attainment and possession. The work is done for others and the castle remains a dream.

EVERY LITTLE BIT HELPS

A fire prevention officer was addressing a meeting and stressed the point that the citizens in his audience should do all in their power to prevent the destruction of our forests.

"How many people here have done anything to save our forests?" he asked at the conclusion of his speech. Whereupon there arose a man who, in a timid voice, answered:

"I have. I shot several woodpeckers."

It is said that Big Bill Thompson likes the Star Spangled Banner. Particularly, suppose, the aspersions on England and the line about "bombs bursting in air."

CASSERLY FOR CONGRESS

Always interested in politics and a student of government, Mrs. Cecelia C. Casserly, of San Mateo, candidate for Congress in the Eighth Congressional district, acquired a deeper interest from her husband and his father, the famous United States Senator Eugene Casserly. Senator Casserly, her father-in-law, was the first Democratic Senator elected in California after the Civil war.

Services performed by Mrs. Casserly during the par period, before and after the entry of the United States, gained her national prominence. In 1915 she was instrumental in organizing California women to work for the rehabilitation of wounded French soldiers, and the succor of suffering people in Europe. Her organization was adopted by the Red Cross when it was organized in 1918, and Mrs. Casserly was placed in charge of Red Cross work in San Francisco. Mrs. Casserly's Red Cross and relief work among returning soldiers during the war period was recognized signally by the government.

During the flu epidemic of 1918 her home was offered to the county of San Mateo as a public hospital for the benefit of the county, as there was at that time no hospital where the victims of the epidemic could be taken care of. Under the auspices of the Red Cross this home remained open as a public hospital for over three weeks.

In 1920, by special appointment of the Secretary of War, she was named national director of hostesses in all recreational work of the army. Her work for the War Department necessitated residence in Washington, where she gained a complete insight into the mechanism of government.

Mrs. Casserly would represent the Eighth district and California in Congress with distinction. She would be the second Democratic Congresswoman to be sent to Washington and the first from California.

She is a woman of means and leisure, with children grown, prepared to give all her time and devote all her proven ability to the best interests of the Eighth district, comprising the counties of San Mateo, Santa Clara, Monterey, Santa Cruz, San Benito, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo and Ventura. In addition to her ability as an organizer she is a woman of culture and education, famed as a hostess.

She is contesting the Congressional nomination on both the Democratic and Republican tickets, with the present incumbent, Congressman Arthur Free.—Advertisement.

J. W. COLEBERD ENDORSED BY MEMBERS OF THE BAR

We, the undersigned members of the San Mateo County Bar Association, do hereby endorse the candidacy of J. W. Coleberd for member of the Assmebly from this county. Mr. Coleberd has practiced law in this county for over seventeen years, and for the past three years has been the president of the San Mateo County Bar Association, and is now president of the local administration committee for San Mateo county, appointed by the board of governors of the State Bar of California. We can vouch for his integrity and ability and know that if elected he will make an excellent representative for the county.

PLAN NEW PLANTS FOR CALIFORNIA

Whether rare and valuable plants of the mint and sage variety found only in countries of the old world can be adapted to the climate and soil of Southern California is the purpose of experiments soon to be concluded in Europe by Dr. Carl C. Epling of the botany department of the University of California. Dr. Epling has been absent from the university for a year, studying the herbaria of various countries, and is now carying on his research work in the Kew Gardens of London, England.

His work abroad has been supplemented by research experiments on the campus of U. C. L. A., designed to study the adaptability of various European plants to California's climate. In addition to his work in the Kew Gardens, he has also visited France, Germany and Switzerland in the course of his investigations. He is assisted by a fellowship from the Guggenheim Foundation.

The botany department of U. C. L. A. is represented also this summer in Canada, where Dr. William Newton is conducting work in plant nutrition for the government there.

HICKEY ENDORSED BY LABOR LEADER

Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey of the First township received the following endorsement from John A. O'Connell, secretary of the San Francisco Labor Council, yesterday:

"Supervisor Hon. Thomas L. Hickey, South San Francisco.

"Dear Friend Tom: I have been informed that you are again a candidate for the office of supervisor in San Mateo county.

"It is my earnest wish that you be successful and be in a position to carry forward your constructive work in behalf of the citizens of our flourishing sister county.

"It has been my observation that you have used your best efforts to make San Mateo county a better place in which to live, and you have materially assisted the men and women who toil in their efforts to better their economic conditions.

"Expressing the hope that you will be successful in your campaign for re-election, and with best wishes for your future success, I beg to be,

Sincerely yours,
"JNO. A. O'CONNELL."

Kindness to a Dog Pays Old Prospector

Reno, Nev.—Kindness to a dog has apparently brought Jesse Swan, prospector, the gold for which he has long searched the sandy wastes and barren hills near Gerlack, in the extreme northwestern end of Nevada. Finding a half-starved and exhausted dog near his lonely cabin Swan nursed the animal back to health. A few days later the dog uncovered a rich gold float while digging in the sand. Swan traced the float to a ledge and has apparently made a rich strike. Scores of claims have been located in the vicinity and Swan has received several tempting offers for his holdings.

MAN KILLS SELF TO END HIS COWARDICE

Broods Over Fears and Commits Suicide.

New York.—Henry L. Druckliev was a lifelong coward. He brooded over his fears and came to the conclusion that the only brave thing to do was to kill himself. He did that with a pistol.

Druckliev was in the prime of life—forty-two, he carefully explained in a long note he left behind. He never was able to make himself a hero in his own eyes, he said.

"Although I have perhaps achieved more than the average person of my age," his farewell begins, "still what I have achieved is so very far from what I've wanted to achieve, that life is not worth living.

"This realization has come forcefully to me by several mistakes I have made in judgment in the last year or two, and at my age mistakes are very costly. When one is aware of the tendency toward certain mistakes, and makes them, then this shows his weakness is not being overcome.

"My great mistake and weakness was in trying to do too much at one time. I have been more or less a terrible coward. Hating cowardice, I have come to hate myself. I will do one brave act and that is to forever kill this cowardice."

Bandit Amuses Victim With Thrilling Yarns

Kansas City, Mo.—For an hour early one morning recently Paul F. Schwartz, manager of a Kansas City drug store, was the unwilling audience of a man who entertained him with tales of modern banditry while accomplices robbed the drug store safe of $370 in cash and three wrist watches.

Schwartz had closed the store and was on his way home when he was stopped by the bandit. Keys to the store were demanded, and when he produced them his captor placed them on the sidewalk and instructed him to keep walking. Schwartz said he saw another man pick up the keys and go in the direction of the drug store.

A block away his captor called a halt and suggested that they sit on the curbing for a while. To make conversation, the robber told Schwartz humorous and thrilling incidents of his career as a bandit.

After an hour a motor car passed and the driver called to the guard. After warning his victim to take things easy for a while, the guard joined the motorist and drove away.

Schwartz notified the police, and investigation at the store revealed that the combination of the safe had been worked.

The keys were left hanging in the locked door.

Hid in Ship Rigging to Capture Smugglers

New York.—By hiding at night in the rigging of his ship, the better to play detective, Capt. G. Y. Hudgins of the American Export line freighter Blue Triangle was responsible for the arrest of five members of his crew for robbery and smuggling when his ship docked here recently.

Two of the prisoners, Theodore Brewer, ship's carpenter, and Boatswain Babis Carlos, spent 15 days of the voyage in irons and face prosecution for the theft of bolts of silk from the cargo. Three Greek sailors are being held by the customs authorities on suspicion that they have been engaged in opium smuggling. A search of the vessel disclosed an undetermined quantity of opium, liquor and obscene pictures.

During the last few months thousands of dollars' worth of silk has been stolen from the ship's hold, according to Captain Hudgins, and hidden by members of the crew.

Horseshoe Brings No Luck to Holdup Man

New York.—The need of money to buy burglar tools with which to blow a safe was the reason given by Joseph Boru, forty years old, for his bold attempt to hold up Nellie Negri cashier of the Automat restaurant recently.

Walking up to the cashier, Boru took the horseshoe from a newspaper and said: "I'll beat you over the head and kill you if you make an outcry." He reached across the counter and seized a package containing $120. Then he ran, followed by Miss Negri, several bus girls, and 100 diners, whose shouts attracted Patrolman Joseph O'Rourke, who captured him.

SEASONABLE DISHES

There is nothing more appealing during the warm weather than cooling drinks and frozen ices.

Pineapple Maple Parfait. — Drain the juice from a can of crushed pineapple, add water to make one cupful of liquid, then add one-fourth cupful of sugar. Put in the bottom of a brick mold, holding one quart. Heat one-half cupful of maple sirup to the boiling point and pour over two eggs beaten light, very slowly; beat and cook in a double boiler for four minutes. Cool and fold in one-half pint of heavy cream, beaten stiff; add one-half cupful of pecan meats, cut in fine pieces and one-eighth teaspoonful of salt. Put carefully on top of the pineapple juice. Cover with greased paper and pack in ice and salt for two hours or longer. This mixture should fill the mold; if not quite full, pour in one corner a little cold water, it will mix with the pineapple juice without spoiling the dish. Strawberry, raspberry or orange juice can be used as well as pineapple.

Pineapple-Raspberry Punch.—Drain two No. 3 cans of crushed pineapple, pressing out all of the juice. Pour one cupful of water through the pineapple and press again. Add sugar to the water and juice, using two and one-half cupfuls, add the grated rind of one lemon and one orange and boil five minutes. Reserve one cupful from a quart of raspberries, crush the remainder, rub through a sieve, pour over one cupful of water, press and drain again, add the sirup and the juice of four oranges and four lemons and strain through a fine cheesecloth. Just before serving pour into a punch bowl over a large block of ice, add charged water, using one quart, and a bunch of mint leaves. This will serve 25 glasses.

Broiled Kidneys.—Now that every body is eating liver and other similar meats there will be those who will enjoy these: Order the kidneys of veal with the fat left on, arrange, after trimming and splitting, on a buttered broiler and broil ten minutes. Remove to pieces of toast and pour over melted butter, season with salt, cayenne and lemon juice. Garnish with parsley.

Some Warm Weather Desserts.

With one of the quick freezing ice cream freezers, a dessert is not as much work as an ordinary pie, to prepare.

Macaroon Ice Cream.—Dry and pound enough macaroons to fill one cup. Add one quart of cream, three-fourths of a cupful of sugar and one tablespoonful of vanilla. Freeze and let stand for two to three hours to ripen.

Maple Parfait.—Beat four eggs lightly and pour on slowly one cupful of hot maple sirup. Cook until the mixture thickens, cool and add one pint of whipped cream. Pack in ice and salt and let stand three hours.

Praline Ice Cream.—Blanch and cut in pieces lengthwise one cupful of almonds, bake or roast in a shallow pan until well browned, shaking the pan occasionally, then chop fine. Caramelize two-thirds of a cupful of sugar and add very slowly two cupfuls of scalded cream. As soon as the sugar is dissolved, add the chopped nuts, two-thirds cupful of sugar and a pinch of salt. Cool, add a quart of cream and freeze.

Pineapple Mousse.—Heat one can of pineapple and drain. To one cupful of the sirup, add one tablespoonful of gelatin which has been softened in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water. Add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and one cupful of sugar. Strain and cool. As the mixture thickens fold in the whip from one quart of cream. Pack in ice and salt and let stand four hours.

Orange Ice.—Make a sirup of a quart of boiling water and two cupfuls of sugar. Cook twenty minutes, add two cupfuls of orange juice, grated rind of two oranges, one-fourth cupful of lemon juice, cool and freeze. The mixture may be strained to remove the rind. Freeze as usual.

Fruit Pudding. — Soak one-fourth cupful of candied cherries in orange juice to cover, one hour, or use maraschino cherries with the liquor; add one-half cupful of walnut meats and one-half pound of marshmallows cut in small pieces. Whip one cupful of heavy cream, add two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla, the fruit and mallows; mold and chill. Remove from the mold and garnish with a bright-colored jelly.

Cantaloupe Cocktail.—Scoop out the ripe pulp from the melon and cut in bits, peel four large ripe peaches and slice fine, add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, one-half cupful of orange juice with powdered sugar to sweeten. Pack in ice and salt to chill for two hours. Serve heaped high. If used for dessert top with whipped cream.

GRAY-BROWN COATS

"I've come to the zoo, for a good long visit," said the Yaguarunda Cat, though his friends called him Yag.

"Would you like to hear my story?" he asked.

"Oh, do tell it to us," the others said.

"I came from Texas, if anyone would like to know that," he began.

"There aren't many of my family in zoos. No, we don't live much is zoos—that is—few of us ever do.

"But I must go on. I don't suppose you want to hear the same thing over and over again that we don't often, often, often live in zoos.

"But I like it here though the creature I'm most like cannot stand it here I'm told.

"He is very much bored by it and is always restless and trying to wander off or dig his way out.

"You all know I am something like the otter. Well, I don't mind telling you this in case you don't know it.

"Good of me, eh?"

"Ah yes," continued Yag, "I have

The Yaguarundi Cat Grinned.

"We don't go to the same shop for our clothes, ha, ha, nor to the same tailor."

All the animals grinned.

"We wouldn't go to a shop or to a tailor because there are no such things in the animal world.

"No, we don't have foolish and silly styles.

"We get a certain kind of a coat and we wear it all the time, and our families all dress alike so people will know us when they see us, you see.

"People aren't nearly so considerate.

"People dress in all sorts of different things and they dress differently from one year to the next.

"You couldn't tell one family of people by the way they dress, could you?"

All the creatures shook their heads.

"But you could tell my family by our gray-brown coats without any spots or any trimmings, just nice, simple, good-looking suits do we wear, yes, we do."

And all the animals in the zoo said how foolish they thought people were to change their costumes all the time, and to follow styles instead of keeping to one nice costume the way they did.

Circling Globe on "Landskiff"

William Fauer, youthful adventurer of Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, recently arrived in Washington on his man-propelled "landskiff." This strange vehicle is propelled by the feet and arms much in the manner of a rowing machine. However, it is capable of making from 50 to 100 miles a day over good roads, depending, of course, upon the endurance of the skipper. This is Fauer's second globe-circling trip as correspondent for a group of German newspapers to gather material from his experiences and impressions in many lands.

And Aaron Came First

Sunday School Teacher—Johnny, what can you tell me about Aaron?

Just a Little Smile

IMPERATIVE REASONS

Two friends who had not met for a long time ran against each other in a city restaurant and sat together exchanging items of news concerning mutual acquaintances.

"How is old Snaggs, the company promoter, getting on?" inquired one.

"Oh, he's not been feeling very well lately," was the reply. "He has to keep to a very strict diet—just a little of certain special food."

"What's wrong with him?" queried the other. "Indigestion? Insomnia?"

"No. In prison," came the grim reply.

GETTING PRETTY CLOSE

Ethel—You must like that young Scotsman. He's getting pretty close to you, isn't he?

Linda—So close I can't get him to buy even ice cream sodas any more.

No Parking

When Noah sailed the waters blue,
He had his troubles same as you.
For forty days he drove the ark
Before he found a place to park.

Some of 'Em Pretty Expressive

"Look here," growled the traffic cop, who had hailed the impatient motorist, "you be a little more careful of your language or I'll run you in."

"Huh!" retorted the motorist. "I didn't say a word."

"Not with your lips," snapped the cop, "but your horn said 'Go to h—' as plainly as if you had said it yourself."

Dead Giveaway

Ethel—She tried so hard not to let anyone know her age.

Maybelle—She can't very well. You see, she is a twin, and her brother, the other twin, isn't afraid to tell how old he is.

Occupied

"Why don't you write the Great American Novel?"

"Oh, I'm busy making that final analysis you hear so much about."

A STIRRING LIFE

"So you have decided on the life of a cook because of its activity and excitement?"

"Yes, cooks lead stirring lives."

Good Old Days

We talk of "good old days";
Yet rugged were their joys.
And, 'mid convivial ways,
There were some bad old boys.

Signs Point That Way

"Bob is in love with Miss Young blood."

"Did he tell you?"

"No; but he's got her photograph hung alongside the picture of his best dog."

Ancient Wisdom

Tired Ted—Don't you wish ya had a bike, Walt?

Weary Walt—Nope! I wouldn't be true to der motto of our profesh—"Dey toil not, neither do they spin."

Wrong This Time

Barker (irritably) — Another new hat! When will you cease these useless purchases you make under the pretext that they are cheap?

Mrs. Barker—But this one wasn't cheap.

So Show's Done

"The show went broke? How did it happen?"

"The illusionist changed an old lady's half-dollar into a motor car and the old lady kept it."

Coins Valuable Only to the Numismatist

Coins and currency once valued at millions of dollars make up the collection of Cere C. Standford, of Gregory, S. D. The currency is worthless now, except to collectors. The most valuable piece in the collection was taken from ruins at Pompeii. One piece of Austrian currency, worth at one time $500,000, is in the collection. In United States gold coins, Standford has $2 and 50 cents in single pieces, a 50-cent and 25-cent gold coin. He has United States paper money in 50-cent, 10-cent, 25-cent and 5-cent denominations. A silver piece in the collection is one of three peace medals given by the United States to Indian chiefs in 1871. He has an Egpytian coin with the pyramids stamped upon it. Money used in Hongkong has a Chinese emblem on one side and the English Queen Victoria on the other. Coins from the Philippines have Spanish inscriptions on one side and English on the other.

Not Much Demand Now for Handmade Basket

The art of the osier, which is basket making, is one of the oldest of the handicrafts and was once a very important industry of England, but the statement is made that it will soon be exterminated unless some encouragement is given to the workers.

German and Japanese baskets are displacing the product of the other countries where the art flourished first. A great deal of labor is required to cultivate the willows and prepare them for wicker work. The willows are cut with a short curved knife in the early months of the year. They are then soaked in running water for six months. This is known as pitting the willows, and it is necessary to take off the bark to produce white willows. The finished willows are then dried and straightened, when they are ready for the hamper makers and cane workers at the factories.

"Gold Star Mothers"

There seems to be no official interpretation of the term "gold star mother." The Gold Star Mothers' association defines such a mother as one whose son was killed overseas during the World war or who was killed on the sea while serving in the war. The American War Mothers' association defines a gold star mother as one whose son has died between the dates of April 6, 1917, and November 11, 1920, from wounds or disability incurred in service during the war.

Who Will Donate Peacock?

An obituary notice of a peacock, which had been a friend of the bishop of Worcester, Engand, and his family for some years, recently appeared in the Diocesan Gazette. The appreciation, written by the bishop, closes: "May I add that his disconsolate widow, being of the varium et mutabile sex, would, as she tells me, welcome another partner if any one has a peacock to spare."

Hybrid Triumph

What is regarded as an achievement in plant breeding has just been accomplished in the production of a cross between a cabbage and a radish, says the Popular Mechanics' Magazine. The two are of remote relationship, hence the hybrid is considered far more remarkable than those yielded by crossing varieties that more closely resemble each other.

Got Off Lightly

When Elfrida Shryrock, two-year-old daughter of Leonard Shryrock, of Compton, Cal., opened the door of her father's car while it was traveling forty-nine miles an hour, she was thrown to the pavement and rolled sixty feet. Brought to a hospital, the child proved to have suffered no injury other than numerous bruises and cuts.

Family Agreement

"And how do you get on with your wife?"

"I've a splendid working arrangement with her. In the forenoon she does what she wants and in the afternoon I do what she wants."—Dublin Opinion.

Modern Dress

Wife—The seamstress says that she can make a dress for me in less than 30 minutes.

Husband—What part of it does she waste so much time on.

Uses Arrows

"That's the god of love, Mayme."

"Yeah? Where's his revolver?"—Judge.

Greatest peace of mind is secured by trusting the world to take care of itself.

HELPED DURING MIDDLE AGE

Woman Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Denver, Colo.—"I have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and will take more. I am taking it as a tonic to help me through the Change of Life and I am telling many of my friends to take it as I found nothing before this to help me. I had so many bad feelings at night that I could not sleep and for two years I could not go down town because I was afraid of falling. My mother took the Vegetable Compound years ago with good results and now I am taking it during the Change of Life and recommend it."—Mrs. T. A. Miller, 1611 Adams Street, Denver, Colorado.

POOR AMMUNITION

With an acknowledgment on every hand that Supervisor Hickey has well and faithfully filled his office, and that the value of his service increases with each succeeding year and term, one occasionally hears the remark: "Hickey's all right, but he has had it long enough."

This is very poor logic. It would be just as reasonable to discharge a competent workman simply because some other workman desired his position.

Since this "he has had it long enough" seems to be the ONLY ARGUMENT that the opponents of Hickey have been able to advance, it occurs to us that they are equipped with rather poor ammunition.

HORRORS OF SUBMARINE

Once more the world has been shocked by a submarine disaster in which thirty-one men, the entire crew of the Italian submarine F-14, were slowly suffocated by foul air and poisonous gas after the vessel had sunk in 131 feet of water as the result of a collision.

Although the Italian navy performed the prodigious feat of raising the F-14 to the surface within thirty-four hours after the disaster, it was too late to save the lives of any on board. Members of the doomed crew had communicated with those seeking to rescue them for several hours, but suddenly the sounds ceased and it was then known that their fate was sealed.

One after another, submarine crews are thus consigned to horrible deaths. Nations making pretensions to civilization continue to build and induce their young men to sail in these floating coffins. To the credit of these same young men be it said that they never falter, but embrace the danger of entombment alive as a patriotic duty.

The submarine is the most fragile of vessels, easily disabled and quickly sunk without giving its crew the slighest chance for escape. It takes a heavy toll of life in time of peace. It is an inhuman engine of death and destruction in war. It ought to be abolished from the earth.

Ninety per cent of the American motion picture films are made in California.

Guests too, like automatic hot water service

One never knows when hot water is wanted in their home. And one never knows who wants it.

On the average, there is a demand for hot water 70 times a day in the usual family of four. And this demand starts in the early morning and continues until late at night.

How inconvenient it is to meet that demand with the ordinary water heater!

But a modern Automatic Gas Water Heater keeps hot water always ready for instant use. You merely turn the hot water faucet for a cupful or gallons of steaming water.

Why don't you, too, enjoy the comfort and convenience of a modern Automatic Gas Water Heater? It is the cheapest way to heat water in the home.

CAUSES OF CRIME

In their efforts to find an explanation for the increasing prevalence of crime, many thoughtful persons have concluded that the tendency to burden the public with a growing multiplicity of laws may account for much of the lawlessness which now prevails.

Speaking before an international convention of police chiefs at Colorado Springs, Dr. Carlton Simon said: "We can limit and harrass human freedom to such an extent that even the normally balanced individual feels that he is oppressed and will seek unlawful means of expressing his personality."

Through the operation of innumerable laws and the activities of government agencies employed thereunder we are restricted, inspected, spied upon, investigated and caused many unnecessary annoyances which are resented by a people who love freedom.

If more attention were paid to apprehending and punishing real criminals, while allowing greater freedom from harassment to respectable citizens, we should doubtless have a more law-abiding and happier citizenship.

WORKMEN ON BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Earning a living as a lathe operator in a Cincinnati plant, Otis Snyder also sits on the board of directors of the company and takes a hand in running its affairs. When board meetings are over he goes back to his lathe.

This peculiar arrangement is made possible by the fact that the Procter & Gamble Company, doing a gross yearly business of more than $190,000,000, has three directors representing its employees, with voice and vote equal with the capitalistic members of the board, of whom there are nine.

Employees now own 46,000 shares of the company's stock, with a total value of more than $11,000,000, from which they received $700,000 in profits last year.

The custom of encouraging employees to own stock in the corporations for which they work has spread rapidly during the past few years. It not only promotes thrift among them, but makes them more interested in the success of the enterprise in which they are real partners.

TALKING MOVIES SPREAD

At the present time the rapid spread of talking motion pictures is almost sensational. Already more than 400 theatres have been equipped with reproducing apparatus and it is believed that nearly 1,000 will be so equipped by the end of the year, as contracts for 400 additional installations have already been made.

The response of the public to this newest amusement device has been very gratifying, in spite of the summer heat. One New York theatre took in $76,000 in a week, and another's receipts were $106,000 in a similar period.

Another development making rapid strides in that of motion pictures in natural colors. With action, color and sound, the picture film of the future will closely approximate the orignal performance which it reproduces. All this, combined with the radio, will bring to people everywhere a class of entertainment heretofore available to only a favored few in the metropolitan centers.

RUSSIAN HEROES

Exploits of the heroic crew of the Russian ice-breaker Krassin, which saved several members of the Nobile expedition and their relief party, laboring under tremendous odds, have excited world-wide praise.

This gallant feat has even tended to soften the feelings of many toward the Soviet government, whose flag the Krassin flew. But the heroism of the Russians was not due to the fact that they were of the Soviets, but in spite of it. That the rank and file of Russians possess many noble traits of character is universally recognized. That they have preserved their generous impulses in view of the long oppression which they have undergone is added cause for admiration.

What a pity that such a potentially great people should have their aspirations repressed and their happiness denied through the operation of a communistic government, administered by cruel and selfish masters.

CHEMIST AIDS FARMERS

Farmers would do well to look to the chemist, rather than to the politician, for relief from the present unsatisfactory state of agriculture, according to speakers at a recent institute held by the American Chemical Society.

By devising means whereby hitherto wasted products of the farm may be turned into useful commodities, chemistry has already done much toward increasing the farmer's income, but the possibilities in this respect have been only faintly comprehended by the layman.

Oat hulls can be transformed into furniture, cornstalks into artificial silk, sugar cane bagasse into lumber, and so on. Furfural, used in the making of radio panels, electric light sockets and other articles, is a by-product of the oat crop which was unknown fifteen years ago, but one breakfast food company alone in Iowa now ships 200 tons of oat waste daily to be converted into furfural.

In order to handle many of these waste products profitably, new types of machinery must yet be devised, but engineers are constantly working with increasing success toward the end sought.

The utilization of waste farm products and the development of new markets for the commodities thus obtained hold great promise for agriculture of the future.

Italy has just had a "Book Day." We would favor a day for returning the borrowed ones.

One certainty about the brain contests now coming into vogue is that they will not interfere greatly with the beauty competitions.

When a speakers' stand collapsed, members of the band fell on Senator Heflin. A warning to politicians who won't stay on the band wagon.

That Upton Sinclair was bitten by a dog would not have been news, except for the fact that the able Socialist was taking a bath when attacked.

According to the Christian Science Monitor, after the bombing of a troop train in China, General Chang "passed on," but several members of his staff were killed.

HICKEY WINS OUT ON BOULEVARD PLAN

Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey, chairman of the two-counties highway board, won San Francisco's approval of his plan for the extension of Junipero Serra boulevard down the peninsula to the northern limits of Burlingame.

By convincing arguments and presentation of facts showing comparative assessed valuation of the two counties, Hickey won by a 11 to 3 vote of the San Francisco supervisors on a plan of 85 per cent of the cost of the highway to be borne by San Francisco, and 15 per cent by San Mateo county. This plan had previously been ratified by the San Mateo county board of supervisors.

This means another fine outlet for traffic down the peninsula, and is one of the many good roads projects in which Supervisor Hickey has played a very important part.

BUILDING PERMITS

The following building permits have been issued during the past two weeks:

N. R. Vest, 201 Bellevue avenue, alterations.

H. C. Joscelyn, 112 Santa Cruz avenue, five rooms.

D. A. Wood, 39 Mission Circle, seven rooms.

SAW IT COMING

"That was quite a fire when Rosenthal's store burned last night," said Izzy.

"Yes," replied his wife, "I could see it a long way off."

"Sure," answered Izzy, "I saw it six months ago."

In 1907, there were about 6,000,000 telephones in the United States as compared with more than 18,900,000 today, but in 1907 those six million telephones were only partially interconnected, whereas today, it is possible for practically any one of the 18,500,000 telephones to be connected with any other one of that number.

A SLIGHT MISTAKE

Best Girl: "That's not the gear shift. That's my knee."

SOME ODDS AND ENDS OF THE WEEK'S NEWS

Ralph McLeran, former supervisor of San Francisco and a dominant figure in San Francisco politics, died last Tuesday following a gallant fight against illness which led his physicians to abandon hope a week ago.

Fearing that their son Hubert, 12 years of age, has been lost in the treacherous valleys of Mount Lassen, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Akers, of Lewiston, Idaho, have wired officials at the Del Monte Military Academy summer camp appealing that an immediate search be made. The boy has been missing since August 12.

Walter Aletvogt, one time wealthy building contractor of San Jose, ended his life at Richmond, Va., by taking poison.

Declared to have written a threatening letter to a dentist after he had done some work for her, Miss Josephine Jones, aged 35, was arrested in San Francisco and placed in the detention hospital for observation as to her sanity.

By using air mail instead of ordinary channels, four University of California alumni scored "beats" over rivals for football tickets which were placed on sale Tuesday and will secure preferred seats, university officials announced.

The trial of Charles A. Kohen, Mohave desert prospector, accused of placing a dynamite bomb on the porch of Judge C. E. Beaumont's residence, is proceeding at Fresno with the defense endeavoring to prove the old "desert rat" insane.

Repair of the landing gear of an airplane while it was being flown in circles over Mills field for nearly two hours, enabled Pilot Joseph Saltzman and Oscar Rothlin, a student, to cheat death in what veteran flyers declared to be one of the most remarkable feats ever witnessed.

Whether it is more advantageous to install an adequate household and fire protection system at this time or put in paved streets and sidewalks, is the problem that is being discussed by the residents of Millbrae.

The Imperial Irrigation District is prepared to complete a sand dam across the Colorado river in order to divert its entire flow into canals serving the Imperial Valley, M. J. Dowd, chief engineer, announced at Calexico last Tuesday.

Husband, returning home and finding his wife out, to the servant girl: "Do you know anything concerning my wife's whereabouts?"

Servant Girl: "Yes, sir. I put them in the wash."

Perhaps Governor Bilbo of Mississippi is right in saying that "neither Smith nor Hoover is religious enough to alarm anybody."

PARKMAN FAVORS FEWER LAWS AND MORE BUSINESS

Friends of Assemblyman Harry L. Parkman contend that there are too few business men in our law making bodies, and they point out that Mr. Parkman is a man of wide business experience.

Before entering business for himself, Mr. Parkman was vice-president and general manager of the Republic Rubber Co., a $30,000,000 corporation with five branches on the Pacific coast.

His appointment on many of the most important assembly committees at the last session is regarded as recognition of his business ability.

Appointments to Ways and Means, Revenue and Taxation, Commerce and Navigation, all committees of great importance to the taxpayers of San Mateo county, are greatly coveted by experienced legislators, and Parkman's appointment to these committees at his first session is a trbiute to his personality as well as his ability.

Assemblyman Parkman is active on the legislative committee which recommended the necessary improvements and reconstruction of the deaf and blind home in Berkeley, over which there has been so much discussion in legislative halls and in humanitarian councils for a number of years. This special committee, appointed at the 1927 session for the purpose of investigating the conditions existing in this big Berkeley institution being composed principally of business men, conducted their work with business directness and vigor and made their recommendations without fear or favor.

The business of running the state of California is the biggest indutry in the state, and more and more business men are required in the halls of legislation.

There are now twenty-six attorneys in the asembly, and Parkman maintains that these twenty-six, together with the Attorney-General and the Legislative Counsel Bureau, (all lawyers) can amply safeguard the public and that a multiplicity of attorneys is not only unnecessary, but unwise.

Parkman contends that there are already many more laws on the statute books than can be enforced, and that every legislator should adopt a policy of introducing only such bills as come from organized, responsible bodies or which are the result of a general public demand. Bill introduced to further the interests of some private individual or political group should receive scant attention.

Parkman is making his fight on his record as a business man and legislator and with a pledge to work at all times and to the best of his ability for the growth, development and betterment of San Mateo county, and his friends are confident that the voters of San Mateo county will re-elect him at the coming primaries.—Advertisement.

SHE KNEW HOW TO ORDER, TOO

"You look sweet enough to eat," remarked the young man while walking with his best girl.

"Fine," replied the sweet young thing. "Where shall we eat?"

WHAT ABOUT THESE WORKING WIVES?

A study of a typical American community, Portland, Oregon, by Clifford Potts, in Forbes Magazine, reveals that the middle class supplies the majority of the married women who work. He studied the relation of this to unemployment, saying in part:

"This 'unemployment in the midst of prosperity' has been a new and puzzling proposition. No need here to summarize such explanatory theories as have been advanced to account for it by the disconcerted economists and other authorities. If any such expert diagnosis has included this intrusion of an ever-increasing number of married women in commercial fields as a casual factor, this has occurred only since B. C. Forbes suggested the idea.

"Some authorities say that the United States, through a combination of readjustments largely brought about by mass production, greater use of labor-saving machinery and elimination of over-production, has been accumulating a surplus of workers since 1924. Secretary Davis of the Department of Labor recently crystalized this view in saying that while 140 workers should now be required where 100 were needed in 1919, the actual fact is that 7 per cent fewer workers are used.

"It must be perfectly obvious that this post-war period of readjustment has been one in which the number of workers should, by no means, have been needlessly increased. Has it been so increased by permitting great numbers of married women to return to business and industrial occupation, virtually without discrimination?

"Answer to the highly pertinent question just propounded was sought through a newspaper investigation of the return of married women into the business life of Portland, Oregon, a typical American city of 345,000 population. The inquiry was instituted mainly to discover to what extent employment doors had been reopened to married women. Probably its most important result was a clear determination of the class and type of these initiates into the working world.

"The inquiry developed an estimate that no fewer than 6,000 married women were holding down jobs in commercial fields of the city. It equalled 35 per cent of all employed women and girls."

CHRYSLER Plymouth

Plymouth 4-Door Sedan $725

AMERICA ACCEPTS AND ACCLAIMS THE NEW PLYMOUTH

The sales record of the new Plymouth, established in two weeks' time, is without parallel or precedent for a car in this field—not in a few retail centers but all over the whole country.

Hundreds upon hundreds of thousands—yes, millions—eager to see the new Plymouth, built by Chrysler to compete in the lowest-priced field, throng Chrysler salesrooms everywhere.

They compare it with the three or four other cars catering to the same great market.

They see contrast in size, style, performance and safety so sharply in favor of Plymouth that curiosity bursts into enthusiasm, enthusiasm is transformed into sales.

In fine, the millions seeking a low first cost now discover in the new Plymouth the one car in the lowest-priced field which is and does everything that they have long hoped a low-priced car would be and do.

You, too, owe it to yourself to see it, ride in it, drive it. All doubt as to the highest dollar-for-dollar value in the lowest-priced field ends right there. 1365

It was not easy for him, tonight, to give his attention to the dancing. The hours passed with intolerable slowness. He knew that not until every guest had gone, and those staying in the house were asleep, would the dangerous Pierre Redlich evolve from the somber, square-shouldered detective.

The Bixels did not stay late. In a sense their going broke up the party. They were so socially pre-eminent that the lesser lights did not care to remain. At two the last motor had rolled down the drive. By three there was not a light in any window. The men had become tired and the women knew the value of sleep.

Redlich had abandoned his resemblance to a rugged guardian of the law. He was crafty, creeping and sinuous. Tonight he was determined to take no risks. He wanted to make certain that Anthony Trent had gone to bed and was not about to patrol the exterior of the house. But he assumed the Yeatman carriage as he knocked upon Trent's door.

After a pause a sleepy voice bade him enter. Redlich saw that Trent had been compelled to rise from his bed, assume a dressing gown and come into the sitting room of his suite. He was not in his customary good temper.

"You are the third," he began crossly, "who has tried to prevent me from sleeping. First, Mr. Gimbert wanted me to share sentry go with him. Secondly, Payson Grant thought I ought to be out there on the wet grass looking for burglars in every bush. And now you come. What's your especial grievance?"

"Merely to suggest that you might desire to patrol the grounds with me." Redlich was smiling amiably. "I am going now."

"Then you go alone," said Anthony Trent irritably. "What's this conspiracy to make me a martyr for another man's house and lot?"

Then he paused as though struck by a sudden perplexing thought.

"What's it to do with you? Why should an accountant figure in a thing like this?"

"The time is come," said the other impressively, "to tell you the truth. I am a detective engaged by Mrs. Grant to protect her guests."

He was gratified at the astonishment he had produced.

Redlich had never liked Trent. He could see that over this young man they thought so bold and debonair fear was creeping.

"Is there any danger, do you suppose?"

"We hope not," Redlich answered, "but I shall not sleep tonight. I shall watch particularly this floor, because it is here that they will come for the jewels. I shall not ask any lurking creature what his business is. I shall shoot."

It was plain that Anthony Trent did not relish danger so close at hand.

"I'm going to lock my door," he said firmly, "and that's a thing I never do."

When he had closed Trent's door and heard the key turn in the lock Redlich made a gesture of vulgar derision at the bolted door.

On his side of it, Anthony Trent was chuckling softly. What infernal impudence for a crook like Redlich to think he could outwit or outgame the man who had been the master criminal!

He did not waste much time in laughing. Pulling the shades down he took from a locked trunk the second of the bathing suits he had bought that afternoon.

It was a suit of knitted wool, black in color, which covered him from neck to toe. The sleeves were wrist length. On his head he put an aviator's casque; to this he straped an automatic pistol.

When the lights were put out, the shades raised and the window softly opened, he drew on the same heavy gloves he had used to climb the lightning rod, and lowered himself to the marble terrace. He had noticed from his window that the white masthead light of the steamer was oscillating far more markedly than on the previous night. It was a symptom of the sea, which was growing rougher.

When he came near the bathing houses Trent could at first detect nothing. Then his straining eyes made out, just beyond the white fringe of surf, a boat rising and falling in the tide. He could see, every now and then, that a man at the oars had to work to keep the boat in the same position. Plainly he was waiting midway between shore and ship. And Trent guessed shrewdly that he was waiting for Pierre Redlich.

Anthony Trent hoped Redlich would succeed. He had two principal accounts against him. The first was his maltreatment of Mademoiselle Dupin. The other was the poisoning of the dogs

The man in the boat, leaning on his oars and dreaming of the ease Redlich's work would bring him, did not see anything at which to be alarmed during his vigil. He wished his leader would make haste. These summer storms along the Jersey coast had an almost tropical violence at times.

So fixed were his eyes on the spot where the signals would flash that he had no idea a swimmer passed a few yards from him. The men on the tramp were leaning anxiously over the vessel's side when the black-clad swimmer clambered up the anchor chains, got a grip of the hawse-hole opening, and pulled himself on deck. Merging into the black night he crept to the unoccupied bridge and climbed to the top of the little deckhouse. Here, where no light shone on him, none would look for invaders.

• • • • • • •

Although Redlich's launch was swamped he clambered safely aboard the broad-beamed rowboat and was pulled to the side of La Belle Alliance.

The captain, cheered at the news of complete success, took the wheel, sig

Behind the Weapon Was a Most Surprising Being.

naled his orders, put the vessel into the teeth of the wind and stood out to sea. In the cabin Redlich was describing his exploits.

The sense of achievement led to much boasting. He described, with scornful laughter, the kind of people he had lived among for the past week and had fooled so neatly. And in his jeers he remembered, with special emphasis, Anthony Trent.

The men about him made him repeat how he had won his victories. They laughed particularly at Gimbert, who had finally been beaten and robbed of a diamond of five carats which Redlich flashed before them.

• • • • • • •

No person in the Grant household had been more puzzled than Thorpe the butler when, during the dancing, Trent drew him aside.

"Thorpe," said Trent, "I'm on the track of the man who poisoned those two dogs. I take it you'd like to be in at the death."

Thorpe breathed heavily. "I hope I'll get the chance."

"I'm going to give it to you. Now pay great attention to what I say."

Thorpe listened wide-eyed with astonishment when he heard.

"It's like a book, sir," said Thorpe, "it's like the sort of book I fancy something red-blooded."

"Books don't all have happy endings," Trent reminded him. "I'm not too sure of this. Remember all of you must be armed and all of you must have flashlights. There'll possibly be no need to shoot, but every man of the bunch must be captured or I shall be branded as the prize fool. You understand," he said as the music stopped, "that one incautious move on the part of you and your men, the lighting of one match or the smell of tobacco smoke, may rob you of all this fun. As for me, well I don't want to think of what they'll say to me if anything goes wrong."

• • • • • • •

The captain of the tramp steamer La Belle Alliance was reflecting on the perils of the sea and the unfortunate accidents which often occur, and associating Pierre Redlich with some of the most deadly, when he stared into the mouth of a blue-black barrel. Behind the weapon was a most surprising being. In the dim light it looked as though some strange creature of the sea had risen from his kingdom to invade that of man. Tall, dripping wet, and crested in an inhuman manner, this apparition advanced closer until the captain gasped with a certain emotion of relief when he saw he had to do with a man.

But a man with a loaded pistol may not be welcomed as a friend in situations of this sort. There was menace in the eyes that stared into those of the captain.

"I've taken charge," said Anthony Trent, "and if I hear anything from you you go back the way I came."

He made a free and sweeping gesture toward the open sea. Keeping his weapon pointed to the sailor, Trent stooped and picked up a small coil of rope. Hardly resisting, the captain was bound hand and foot. Then he was shoved into a corner and Trent took the wheel.

The wind was freshening from the east. The storm long expected was at hand.

Only the captain knew that the madman at the wheel was altering the course of the vessel.

On shore Thorpe, the footman, and the four men from the garage were waiting in states of varying excitement. Thorpe would tell them no more than there was danger ahead, and probably, monetary reward for it.

In his struggle to gain the very position he now occupied, Trent had somewhat lost sight of the ending of the adventure. He was doing a foolhardy trick, and it might cost him a great deal. Incidentally it might cost him his life. There was no moon to show him the landmarks on which he relied. He signaled half-speed-ahead, and strained his eyes to see. Presently the white line of breakers showed ahead. And then, lifting itself above the waterside mist, he saw the white Italian palace Guggensohn had built.

Now that he was sure of his direction, and knew he was headed for the abandoned harbor, he signaled full-speed-ahead. It was one of the most thrilling moments of his life when he saw La Belle Alliance dart forward and begin to climb the private beach. A wave lifted her so high at the last that her blunt old bow smashed the ornamental bathing-houses and came to a shuddering rest among the splintered wood. It would have been impossible to have a prettier landing. Piled up on a beach, and not for the first time, lay La Belle Alliance.

At least, Trent thought, there need be no loss by drowning through his exploit. Eight men came swarming up on deck having no idea where they were. They wasted no time in cursing an unskillful captain. They saw the shining sands and they heard the breakers behind them, and they leaped ashore.

Thorpe's instructions, while concise, had not been explanatory. He had been bidden gather his six men and keep them hidden in an unlighted garage until the moment came. The particular moment was to be indicated by Mr. Yeatman himself, who would act all unconsciously. The amazing news was that this Yeatman, so far from being a detective, was a burglar, and a dangerous one. Should Yeatman discover Thorpe spying upon him Trent thought he would shoot the butler, unless the butler was quicker with the gun.

It had been a moment of the utmost tenseness when Yeatman passed within five feet of the watching butler, and even stopped for a moment as though listening.

Thorpe's six men, denied the little knowledge of the matter he possessed, kept silence admirably. They were conscious of a certain mysterious sense of imminent danger. Crouched on the damp sand they waited for some terror to creep upon them from the deep.

Beds of Clay Reveal the Passage of Time

Geologists can follow the tracks of the sun and tell the time, year by year, in geological ages—so ancient that even by millions of years they are hard to count.

Not far from Stockholm there are some remarkable beds of clay, regularly arranged in alternating bands of sand and clay. These turn out to be the layers deposited by the melting glaciers of the Ice age, each one laid down in the spring and summer when the sun was hottest. And as there was a freeze-up each winter and melting each summer, the layers become almost as accurate an index to the antiquity of the Ice age as the annual rings of a tree are to the age of the tree.

Moreover, the same system of measuring geological time has now been extended over all Scandinavia, and parts of India and South America. Everywhere the layers appear to correspond so closely in the variations of their thickness, year by year, that there seems no doubt they were laid down in corresponding years.—Baron Gerard de Geer.

Drama of Astronomy

Astronomy is marked by a drama of life and hope that no other human activity has approximated. The first complete system was formulated by the Greeks, who conceived the stars as fixed in a spherical shell which rotated once daily about the axis of the universe. This shell, beyond the orbit of the planets, they thought was the visible boundary of the universe.

And a Great Improvement

FIFTEEN PILOTS GUIDED 15 YEARS

Harry Wright Started Ball Rolling in 1869.

There were and are 15 managers who lasted 15 or more years as leaders of major league clubs, which is a long time to stick in such a strenuous position.

Harry Wright began managing clubs in 1869. For a stretch of 25 years Wright led ball teams to pennants and other positions with the Cincinnati club until 1870, then with the Boston and on to the Philadelphia club, where he ended his managerial career in 1893. Highly successful and of a lovable disposition, Harry Wright was one of the most popular managers the game ever contained.

Adrian C. Anson led the Chicago club from 1879 until 1897, a period of 19 years. He made that club famous. He was one of the greatest leaders the game ever had. It was his fearless aggressiveness and strict honesty, together with a powerful bat, that made Anson and the Chicago club famous.

Frank Selee was one of the most successful leaders in the game. He was one of the greatest bench managers of all time. While manager of the Boston club he led it to five pennants. With the Chicago Cubs from 1902 until 1905, he handed Frank Wilbert Robinson.

Edward Hanlon led many teams and for 17 years was regarded as one of the greatest leaders of the pastime. Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Brooklyn, all became great aggregations under his leadership.

Fred Clarke managed the Louisville club three years, then became manager of the Pittsburgh club and for sixteen years successfully managed that club. During his nineteen years as a manager of ball clubs Clarke won four pennants and in only two seasons did his club finish in second division.

Charley Comiskey was a highly successful leader. For fifteen years he was classed with the great ones of the game. His efforts while with the St. Louis Browns resulted in that club, winning four successive pennants. He made the club the most famous in the pastime. With the Cincinnati club three years, then with his own club, the Chicago White Sox, which he led in person for three years with much success. Comiskey then began to hire managers.

Wilbert Robinson is now in his fifteenth year as manager of the Brooklyn club. It was difficult to get Uncle Robbie to venture into the strenuous life, but when he did accept, it was for keeps. Robinson has had his share of success as well as a good share of the bitter stuff.

Young Fellows Should Keep Out of Football

Young fellows going to college who have big league ambitions should keep out of football. The coaches wouldn't let George Sisler play at Michigan, and Ted Lyons, who was a crackerjack end at Baylor, was ruled off the gridiron by his coach, who realized that he was a big league ball player.

They're saying now that Bruce Caldwell's arm is weak, that he has a "football arm" as the result of bruises received on the gridiron.

Riggs Stephenson of the Cubs was held back several years because of the football injuries he received at Alabama. He also had a "football arm," and a bad leg, to boot.

Good ball players haven't any business on the gridiron.

Many Japanese Golfers Playing in California

There are over 400 Japanese golfers in California and three clubs with memberships restricted to Nipponese.

In Los Angeles there is the Yogi Oki, which translated means Get Up at 4 A. M. club. The Lincoln Park club at San Francisco is known as the Kasume Golf club, meaning Fog Belt club. At Sacramento they play the course under the name of Kagel club which is translated Heat Wave club.

A. G. Sato has been their champion for the past three years and was the first Japanese to compete in championship events in California. He has received a good offer to go to Japan as a professional, but prefers to keep his amateur standing.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Claimants in California to shares in the fund of $2,500,000 available for distribution among subscribers to the cause of the Irish Republic will have until the end of the year to present their claims. The time limit has been extended by the courts upon motion of the receivers of the fund. Their offices are at 117 Liberty street, New York. Subscribers to the loan numbered nearly 300,000.

William Carey, California pioneer, who voted in 1850 because he wore "man size" boots, although only 15 years old, died at Paso Robles last week at the age of 93 years. He was believed to be the last survivor of those who voted to adopt the Constitution under which California was admitted to the union in 1850.

More mail was carried between San Francisco and Chicago during the month of July than on any other of the 22 air mail lines in the United States. Approximately 70,000 pounds was the volume of mail on the western route, according to the Federal Postoffice Department announcement a few days ago. The New York-Chicago route was second with 55,752 pounds, according to Associated Press dispatches.

The California Railroad Commission passed upon applications for authority to issue $230,112,914.57 of stocks, bonds, notes, and other public utility securities during the fiscal period ending June 30, 1928, according to the annual report of the Department of Finance and Accounts of the Commission. Of this amount, the Commission authorized the issuance of $218,559,617.57 of such securities, denied permission for $1,456,297.00 worth, and dismissed applications involving $10,097,000.00.

A spectacular fire, which for a time threatened some of the larger buildings at the State Fair Grounds at Sacramento, destroyed livestock exhibit sheds to the value of $15,000 last week. After a hard fight on the part of practically the entire fire department, the blaze was confined to a small area north of the women's building. Spontaneous combustion in some stored hay is believed to have been responsible for the blaze.

The State Board of Barber Examiners is busy this month renewing licenses held by some 19,000 registered barbers and apprentices throughout the State, and also permits held by journeymen awaiting educational tests. The new licenses all must be in the hands of the barbers before September 1. More than 12,000 licenses were renewed during the first ten days of the renewal period.

Reports to the office of State Forester M. B. Pratt indicate that of the 626 field and forest fires reported to his office this year all but twenty were due to human agency. The others were caused by lightning. Smokers were held responsible for 263 fires; brush burning, 143; railroads, 30; campers, 28; incendiarists, 25; and lumbering operations, 6.

California banks and business corporations would be taxed at the rate of 4 per cent on their net incomes under a plan the State Tax Commission will submit to Governor C. C. Young in a few days. Although indicating that the figure is tentative and may be changed in the final report, Irving Martin, chairman of the commission, revealed it with other proposals in a statement issued last week. Governor Young is considering the possibility of calling a special session of the Legislature for next month.

California state banks and all departments thereof had, on June 30th, last, total individual deposits of $1,407,803,389.18, representing the accounts of 2,666,362 depositors. In addition there were $110,119,932.68 of United States, state, county and municipal deposits, making in all a total deposit liability of $1,517,923.85. These figures appear in the report of Will C. Wood, state superintendent of banks, to the comptroller of the currency. There were 1,642,773 savings accounts and 623,589 commercial accounts. The average savings account was $625.86; the average commercial account was $608.82.

California county coroners will make a determined effort at the next session of the State Legislature to cut out the red tape that now hampers their investigations and often permits criminals to make a "getaway" before responsibility is fixed for the crime. Coroner James R. Garlick of Sacramento, legislative representative of the State Association of Coroners, has disclosed plans for the proposed legislation. One of the major proposals of the State association, he said, will permit the county coroner to have special investigators or deputies who are trained criminologists, rather than undertakers forced to assume the task.

Eight hundred and seventy-nine Californians last their lives and 11,677 were more or less seriously injured in California during the first six months of 1928 in motoring accidents, according to official summary made public a few days ago by Frank G. Snook, chief of the Division of Motor Vehicles. Included in the death toll were fifty-five children under fifteen years of age. Among the injured were 427 children under four year. Los Angeles County led in the number of deaths, with 275, or 31 per cent of the total. Alameda was second, with 77, and San Francisco third, with 49.

Receives Recognition From German University

Mr. William E. Weiss.

The University of Cologne, Germany, has just paid to Mr. William E. Weiss, of Wheeling, W. Va., one of the founders and General Manager of Sterling Products (Incorporated), and now Vice-President and General Manager of Drug Incorporated, an unusual distinction by bestowing unanimously upon him the title of Doctor Philosophiae Honoris Causa.

Mr. Weiss is the first and only American to be so honored by this world famous German institution. This mark of preferment came to Mr. Weiss in recognition of his efforts to further the industrial relations that have extended over more than a decade between the Directors and Scientific and Chemical staffs of German and American Pharmaceutical firms that are prominent in international industrial affairs.

During the past few years Mr. Weiss has been a frequent visitor to Europe and is a recognized link in strengthening commercial friendship between the old and new continents, a truth emphasized by the action at Cologne.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

$500,000 SHOW OF SOIL PRODUCTS AT STATE FAIR

California's choice products of orchard, farm and mine, as represented in the exhibits of thirty-nine counties at the State Fair, September 1 to 8, will be valued at $500,000, according to A. C. Hardison, of Santa Paula, director in charge of agriculture and horticulture.

This vast array of soil production will occupy the entire ground floor of the huge horticultural pavilion. The mineral displays alone will carry a value of $100,000. Fruits, vegetables and other crops as arranged in the various county booths will add $400,000.

"The $500,000 estimate is a conservative figure," said Hardison. "It is difficult to place a value on the amount of time and effort required to collect all these products throughout California. The exhibit booths alone, with their unique and attractive construction features, are very costly. Some of them run as high as $10,000.

"All this time and expense is put into an eight-day exposition for the purpose of showing California and the rest of the world the remarkable diversity of California's soil products. I consider it the best single advertising medium the state could have. In view of the fact that here is a show representative of all the wealth and productivity of California, it behooves every Californian to boost it enthusiastically."

Installation of the county exhibit booths is in full swing at the fair grounds this week, well in advance of the construction work in previous years.

"There will be no last minute rush this year," says Charles W. Paine, secretary manager. "Everything will be set for the opening hour on the opening day, September 1."

CHARLES CHAPLIN'S "CIRCUS" COMING TO STATE THEATRE

Next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, August 27, 28 and 29, will be circus time at the State Theatre, as the management has secured Charles Chaplin's great picture, "The Circus," for those dates. "The Circus" is a great picture in more ways thon one, and you should not fail to see it.

This Saturday, August 25, Marion Dixon and Hobart Bosworth in "The Chinese Parrot" will be the feature picture at the State.

On Sunday there will be two fine pictures, Fred Thompson in "The Pioneer Scout," and Louis Ralph in "The Raider Emden."

Billie Dove in "The Heart of a Follies Girl," will be the feature for Thursday, while the State will present Victor McLaglen and Louise Brooks in "A Girl in Every Port" on Friday, August 31.

"WHAT A MAN" SCHEDULED FOR CURRAN, AUGUST 27

Many pleasing compliments have been paid the French farce, "What a Man," that comes to the Curran on Monday night, August 27, but paramount is the fact that it played in London for two years and New York for over a year.

In the cast is a nationally known master of comedy, John T. Murray, and Ruth King heads an excellent supporting company of funsters, including Ward Hamilton, Harriet George, Myrtle Vane, Dedette Lee, Gilbert Albright, Boyd Akin, Ernest F. Young, Connie Dawn and Dore Wilson.

Seymour Hicks is tht author of this laugh producer and he has interwoven so much comedy in the plot that the audience is kept in continuous laughter throughout the entire action of the play.

Two popular matinees will be given, Wednesday and Saturday.

HAD NOTHING ON HIM

A certain business man who had had quite a struggle in his younger days, remarked to one if his employes one day, rather pompously:

"Well, I started life as a barefoot boy."

"Well, Chief," retorted the employe, "I wasn't born with my shoes on, either."

SIDELIGHTS

We read that Foreign Minister Tanaka of Japan will be unable to go to Paris this month to sign the Kellogg peace pact, in which fifteen nations will join. The reason: Japan is in danger of getting into a war with China, so Tanaka must stay on the job.

A Massachusetts freshman, casting about for ways and means wherewith to buy a fraternity pin, hit upon the idea of holding up a cigar store. Like many another beginner, he bungled the job and was landed in jail.

In the American Legion's junior baseball competition Oakland, Cal., post sponsored a team composed of Albert Hue, Henry Lum, Ernest Chinn, Henry Chinn, James Lim, Lew Wing, Lester Lee. Key Chinn, Hector Eng, Benjamin Chan and Albert Bowen. All are American-born, of Chinese parents, and they put up a nifty game, too.

Press dispatches recently carried the obituary of Sam Houston, a young Texas burro. His prominence was due to the fact that he was given to Mrs. Al Smith at the Houston convention after the Governor's nomination and was taken as a pet to Albany, where he died of pneumonia.

Young Stribling of Georgia claims the heavyweight championship on account of Tunney's retirement. Maybe he can prove his claim, but it is doubtful that Tex Rickard will put up another half-million purse to induce him to try it.

"WOMEN THEY TALK ABOUT" AT THE EMBASSY THEATRE

While Warner Brothers with their Vitaphone sound-reproducing device, and all other big motion picture companies are concentrating their energies upon perfecting talking pictures, the advancement made can be traced in the combination film plays that are now before the public. An example of this is "Women They Talk About," at the Embassy Theatre, San Francisco. While this is not an all-taling picture and only some of the scenes are given with dialogue, Vitaphone accompaniment, a vast improvement is noted as compared with the earlier talking film, shown at this theatre.

"Women They Talk About" is a romance with a political fight as a background. It treats of a man and woman who have loved but who have become strong political enemies. Tied with this is a love story of two young people.

SAN MATEO COUNTY FROGS MAY BE ENTERED IN JUMP

Are the frogs of Calveras county really such extraordinary jumpers, or was Mark Twain just spinning another of his famous yarns?

The question will be answered at the California state fair, Sepember 1 to 8, when frogs from all parts of the state will be entered in a contest to determine which is capable of the longest leap.

Calveras may have the edge by reason of Mark Twain's account and by virtue of a frog jumping jubilee at Angels Camp a few months ago. when the amphibious animals of Calveras proved themselves to be prodigious jumpers. But other counties are not willing to concede the honors to Calveras without a struggle and the competition is thrown open to the entire state.

San Mateo county has been invited to send along its accomplished frogs, and each afternoon of the fair the croakers will battle, county against county, through an elimination process until the finals are reached the last day of the exposition.

So, if there are any San Mateo county sportsmen who think they can corral a frog that can jump, they are invited to take him to the fair and enter the contest, and perhaps strip Calveras of her laurels as the frog jumping county.

The oldest Jewish ritual object known is reported to have been unearthed at Shechem, and is said to be the one which Jacob erected as an alter, 34 centuries ago.

WAS LOOKING FOR BARGAINS

When a little baby girl arrived at the home of a certain resident, his wife noticed that hubby paid very little attention to the little mite as it lay in its mother's arms.

The fact of the matter was that the father had wanted a son and heir. Wifie was greatly disappointed and worried at his lack of interest. One day, however, after they had bought a neat little crib for baby, wifie noticed hubby standing over the little one, in a reflective mood, and she joyfully remarked:

"A penny for your thoughts."

"I was just thinking," said hubby, "how in heck they could make a baby crib like that for $6.75."

Mr. and Mrs. Scott, of Parkview avenue, entertained at dinner last Wednesday evening in honor of Mrs. J. Dwyer, of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKee and family, of Irvington street, spent the week end visiting at the home of Mrs. McKee's sister in Morgan Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Fellows, of Niantic avenue, and Mr. L. Lombard returned home last Monday after spending several days at Orland.

"The Glorious Adventure," by Richard Halliburton, and "The Foolish Virgin," by Kathleen Norris, are now ready for circulation at the John D. Daly library.

Charles Watson, of 74 Irvington street, who has been confined to a hospital at San Jose for several weeks, has returned home much improved in health.

The members of the Joker Club have resumed their meetings again after a two months vacation, and met last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Wolfe in Ocean View.

Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Lacey, of San Diego, spent several days this week visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKee, of Irvington street. Mrs. Lacey is a sister of Mr. McKee. They are just returning from a motor trip to the east coast.

Fred Wettstein, of Brunswick street, spent four days of last week at Livermore, where he enjoyed deer hunting with a group of his friends there. The lucky hunters shot two deer, one a forked horn and the other a four pointer.

Pathe News is showing the pictures this week of William Lee, Jr., seven months old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lee, of 39 Risel street, doing his daily dozen. Little Billie has been trained by his proud parents ever since he was a few weeks old, and much credit is due them, as his exhibition shows the time and patience they have given him.

Little Gloria Gilli, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Gilli, of 75 Crocker avenue, celebrated her fourth birthday last Tuesday evening. The table and dining room were prettily decorated in pink crepe paper and dainty refreshments were served to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. R. Bona, Mr. and Mrs. J. Viotti and sons Raynold and Elmo, Mr. and Mrs. L. Imarisio, Mr. and Mrs. J. Carboni, Mr. and Mrs. P. Fontana, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Castellini.

Alfred Parodi, little son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Parodi, of Evergreen avenue, was christened last Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at St. Maximus church, by Rev. Father Lynch. The godmother and godfather were Mr. and Mrs. Tony Ferro, of Oakland. After the christening about 100 guests gathered at the Parodi home and a delicious Italian dinner was served, after which dancing was enjoyed until the early hours of the morning. The lower floor of the home was prettily decorated with colored crepe paper and greens. J. Cerruti, of Oakland, playing the accordian, furnished the music for the dancing. The baby received many lovely gifts.

UNITED IN MARRIAGE

Miss Angela Oliotti and Mr. Howard Plitsch were married last Saturday morning in San Francisco. Mrs. E. Balladone, of Hanover street, Daly City, was her sister's matron of honor, and Edward Plitsch acted as best man. On Saturday evening a wedding dinner and reception were held in honor of the bride and groom at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Balladone, on Hanover street, for sixty of their friends. After a honeymoon trip the young couple will be at home to their friends at a pretty apartment on Guerrero street. They were the recipients of many pretty gifts.

HOUSE WARMING PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Nick gave a house warming party last Saturday night at their new home on Winchester street. There were four accordian players present who furnished the music for dancing. Friends from all over the country came to wish the Nicks good luck and gave them many useful presents. The house was full and they all had a merry time. A tempting supper was served at 1 a. m. The guests departed at 3 a. m. The pretty Mrs. Nick, a bride of three months, received many compliments on her new home.

VOLUME II FRIDAY, AUGUST 24, 1928 NUMBER 4

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

That's Different

Head of the House, in angry tones: "Who told you to put that paper on the wall?"

Decorator: "Your wife."

"Pretty isn't it?"

Looking Back

"You'd never think this street used to be a cowpath would you?"

"Oh I don't know; look at all the calves on it."

Do you use the most efficient coal? Let us tell you. It's part of our business to know.

The "maddest" man in the world is the fellow who discovers that he has been trimmed while he was trying to trim someone else.

Taking a Mean Advantage

Some religious fanatic had painted the large rock on a western highway with the inscription "What will you do when you die?"

Along came an advertising man and added below, "Use our oil. Good for burns."

Let us figure with you on that new house you are going to build.

Visitor "Are your children doing anything for you in your last illness?"

Old Man: "Oh, yes, they're keeping up my life insurance."

A Modern Epitaph

Here lies the body of William Jay, who died maintaining his right of way. He was right all right, as he sped along, but he's just as dead as though he'd been wrong.

"How come you in jail Rastus?"

"Sho' jes a case of mistaken identity."

"Who all did dey mistake yo' fo'?"

"I mistook a pro'-bition officer fo' a good customer."

She swears she has never been kissed by a man."

"Well, isn't that enough to make any girl swear?"

Waiter (observing diner's dissatisfaction —"Wasn't your egg cooked long enough, sir?"

Diner: "Yes, but it wasn't cooked soon enough."
